An Evening Echo.

Oh! What would the world be to us,
If the children were no more?
We should dread the desert behind us
Worse than the dark before.

—Longfellow.

Philippine Maladministration.

Representative C. B. Miller, of Minnesota, who has just returned from an extensive trip through the Philippine Islands, has brought back an appalling account of the havoc which the Democratic administration has played in the islands, a havoc the news of which has hardly reached this country, because, as Mr. Miller explains, there is practically a censorship of the mails, most of his letters to this country having failed of delivery.

Mr. Miller, who visited the islands when Francis Burton Harrison was inaugurated as governor-general, says: "Formerly all was rejoicing; now everywhere there the situation is strained, suspicious, ominous at times, arousing those tragic moments when tragic blows are received and given. At once the governor-general proceeded to knock down the governmental structure. . . . Today one looks in vain to find responsible government in the Philippines; it is not there."

So sweeping and startling are Mr. Miller's disclosures that they are believable only when it is recalled that the governor-general was a Tammany politician of whom Representative Underwood wished to be rid because he was a sinister influence on the ways and means committee, and that the president appointed him in Secretary Garrison's absence alike to placate Underwood and to gratify Tammany.

Mr. Miller charges him with the loss of thousands of natives from cholera, through his gross abuse of the civil service, his spoils methods and appointment of the worst character of the Philippines; with having disrupted the school system, disorganized the general hospital, once the pride of the Philippine government; with having paved the way for a revolution of as serious a nature as that which has devastated Mexico. Mr. Miller will further describe the terrible condition he found on the floor of the House when Congress meets.

Election Aftermath.

President Wilson and his associates are telling their friends that there is abundant ground for Democratic rejoicing to be found in the Democratic "victories" in Maryland and Kentucky. Fortunately, the Republican victories in Massachusetts, New Jersey and New York were not of the same character. The Democrats elected their governor in Maryland and he succeeds a Republican but these are the facts. Governor Goldsborough, the Republican, was elected four years ago largely as the result of a split in the Democratic party. That party had nominated Arthur Gorman, a son of the late Senator Gorman, and many Democrats, determined to purge their state of "Gormanism," voted for the Republican candidate. This year, however, the Democrats were united and they succeeded in electing their candidate by about 1,000 majority. Furthermore, it is the conviction of many able Marylanders that had this year's Republican fight been made on national, instead of local, issues the 1,000 Democratic majority would have been more than overcome. Eight years ago, when both parties were united, the Democrats elected the governor by a majority of 8,000.

Mr. Wilson's "popularity," therefore, has reduced the normal Democratic majority in Maryland from 8,000 to 1,000 votes. In Kentucky, Mr. Wilson's "popularity" has had an even more serious effect on his party. Four years ago the Democrats elected their candidate for governor by a majority of 31,000 votes. This year they have elected their candidate, if he is elected—it will take official count to decide—by 350 votes. His own supporters do not claim for him a majority of over 500. So, even according to Democratic claims, Woodrow Wilson's "popularity" has cost his party in Kentucky over 30,000 votes.

The tremendous repudiation of Mr. Wilson by his own state, where the Republican majority was over 22,000, the Republican victory in Massachusetts, which state has elected a Republican governor for the first time in five years, etc., have been reviewed heretofore, but it might be added that in Massachusetts where the Hon. Samuel W. McCall was elected by 8,000 majority, there was a tremendously effective Prohibition campaign followed by a big Prohibition vote, so that competent observers believe the Republican majority had it been a presidential year, would have been not less than 20,000.

It is also noteworthy that an astute Democratic Jersey politician estimates that the vote in that state was tantamount to a 40,000 or 50,000 Republican majority in a presidential year.

WHAT OTHER EDITORS SAY

Another Preparedness.

Only six weeks until Christmas, which is another preparedness that must not be overlooked.—Wheeling Intelligence.

Nobody.

If the weather were as decidedly pretty in Europe as it is in the mountains of West Virginia, the war would certainly cease. Who would want to die when they could enjoy an autumn like this?—Spencer Times-Record.

Some Trick.

Kentucky Democrats claim a majority for Stanley of 385 votes in the gubernatorial race. Morrow ought to feel pretty good even though defeated. It was some trick to pull a 30,000 majority down to 300.—Spencer Times-Record.

Nothing.

What under God's heaven is there in the Democratic party to attract any three years ago? Nothing, but everything to repel the progressive soul and the protective spirit of the men, the rank and file, whose mistake made the election of a Democratic president possible.—Wheeling Intelligence.

Our Sentiments.

We are in receipt of a letter from a gentleman in Charleston announcing that another gentleman is a great and logical candidate for treasurer of the state and the thing that puzzles us is to know whether Willis is a fool or thinks the editor of the Recorder.

CHARLESTON: At work in a sawmill at Sewell Valley, Everett Egner was caught in a cog. His back was broken and death was instantaneous. Report of the accident has been made to the Workmen's Compensation department. Another death reported is that of Kelly Saeed, who was caught under a rolling log in a lumber camp at Bles.

HUNTINGTON: Charles, alias Thomas, Canterbury has been sentenced in the criminal court to serve twelve months in the Cabell county jail for an assault and battery on Golda King, aged 11, of McComas district. The girl testified that he grabbed her at a secluded spot on a country road but that when she screamed loudly three times he released her and ran.

CHARLESTON: Edwin M. Keatley, clerk of the federal court for the Southern district, after appearing before the sub-committee of the judiciary committee of federal congress in Washington this week, said that a bill is being drafted to be presented to Congress providing for the abolition of the fee system applying to federal court clerks.

KINGWOOD: Automobiles carrying the East Park troop of the Boy Scouts of Fairmont have gone into Preston county in charge of Levi B. Harr and A. D. Bell, armed with Winchester rifles, to hunt game in the wooded mountains of this county. The boys carry with them complete hunting outfits and equipment for camp and wear their uniforms.

KEYSER: Because they obtained a marriage license at Cumberland, Md., and wanted to be married in West Virginia, Miss Ethel M. Davis and George W. Nummau compromised by being married on a bridge that crosses the Potomac river here and connects the two states. It was necessary for them to be married in Maryland with a Maryland license and, standing on the middle of the bridge, they were technically in that state.

CHARLESTON: John Willis, aged 71, son of Col. John Willis and Lucy Tallaferr, Madison County, of Gordonsville, Va., is dead at the home of his son, the Rev. William Taylor Willis. In the Civil war he fought for the South from Bull Run to Appomattox.

WHEELING: The "Upper Lip" Club has been organized here by a number of well known young society men who have gone in for the cultivation of mustaches a la Charley Chaplin. The rule provides that members must not shave the upper lip for three months and there is a heavy penalty for a violation.

CHARLESTON: Governor H. D. Hatfield has issued his annual Thanksgiving day proclamation. "It is president of the Publishers' Association, is a bigger fool.

What are we here for? For our health? Do you think that we are out where the hoot owl hooteth and want any old thing to fill up space? Come across with the coin of the realm if you want such announcements.—McDowell Recorder.

A Popular Candidate.

If a unanimous newspaper endorsement through most of West Virginia counts for anything, Judge Ira E. Robinson is a popular candidate for the governorship. A perusal of newspapers from all over the state fails to uncover one word that can be construed as reflecting on the character capability or fitness of Judge Robinson. Daily and weekly newspapers alike have flattering words to say for the former president of the state supreme court of appeals.

There must be something back of this state-wide endorsement. And that must be the belief among the Republican partymen that Judge Robinson measures up to the standard required for the governorship.—Parkersburg News.

His head shot up from 'hind a cliff,
An arrow then whizzed by.
Next—two bullets came, Bif! Bif!
My, my, how poets lie!

xx-xx-z-zz!

Foolish Ferdinand was walking through the woods.

Suddenly he laughed.

"Hee hee!" he laughed.

For, behind a far clump of doughnut bushes, he has espied a hunter taking aim at him.

"He thinks I'm a deer," said foolish Ferdinand and chuckled.

"Chuh chuh!" he chuckled. "I'll put my hands up to my head like antlers, and then he'll be sure I'm a deer!"

And he put his thumbs on his temples and wiggled his fingers, going "Bla! Bla!" like a deer.

Bang!

The hunter had shot!

It's a good thing for your nerves, timorous reader, that the scene of today's story is laid in the woods connected with Bloebenblatt's Asylum for the Slightly Nuts and that the hunter was merely an inmate with a popgun who imagined he was Colonel Whosebelt in Brazil.

and Carbon Company, which has been granted a charter by the secretary of state, will establish a factory here for the manufacture of typewriter ribbons and carbon paper. M. C. Morgan is president, O. F. Payne vice president and Cal F. Young secretary-treasurer.

BELMONT: J. A. Viquesney, state game warden, announces that so far 170,000 hunters' licenses have been issued from his office to the various counties of the state. The license season will continue until January 1.

HUNTINGTON: Fire of unknown origin destroyed the residence of Leslie Adkins, an employee of the Columbia Gas and Electric Company, at Branchland and burned to death his two-year-old child. The tragedy was witnessed by the mother and father, who were powerless to save the child.

PARKERSBURG: The West Virginia State Board of Trade has appointed a large number of delegates from various points of the state to attend the annual meeting of the Ohio Valley Improvement Association, November 19 and 20.

FAIRMONT: Preparations are being made for the semi-annual meeting of the West Virginia Coal Mining Institute to be held here December 9. Governor H. D. Hatfield will attend and deliver an address.

MARTINSBURG: Earl Tetrick, seven-year-old son of a section foreman, was run down and killed at North Mountain by a special train on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad carrying its president, Daniel Willard, and other high officials on an inspection trip.

HUNTINGTON: Mrs. Anne Mahon, a resident of Sunbeam, Logan county, who will be 102 years old January 6, is cutting a new set of teeth, the sixth time she has done so during her long life. Mrs. Mahon has lived all her life at and near Sunbeam and has never been out of Logan county.

MORGANTOWN: Dr. P. A. Gibbons, well known physician, fell down a hillside and broke his leg while going after two pheasants he had shot while hunting near Masontown.

HUNTINGTON: The General Film Company is preparing to open a branch in this city, which will be a distributing point for motion picture films supplied to theaters in southern Ohio, West Virginia and eastern Kentucky.

WHEELING: Arrangements have been made to hold the annual exhibition of the Wheeling Poultry and Pet Stock Association in this city January 24-29.

HUNTINGTON: A national guard machine gun corps has been organized here with Major H. H. Rice, of the state militia, in charge and a membership of fifty. Four machine guns are to be sent here from the federal war department.

CAPT. MANION OF PARKERSBURG IS FOR NERV-WORTH

"Has Done Me More Good Than Any Medicine I Have Ever Taken."

Captain T. W. Manion, of 722 Seventh street, Parkersburg, is one of those numerous Parkersburg folks who having secured health and ease from Nerv-Worth, want every friend and neighbor to hear the good news. His enthusiasm over Nerv-Worth appears in the following letter written by him quite recently.

"I have suffered for twenty years with stomach and kidney troubles and rheumatism and kidney troubles and rheumatism. I have taken about one bottle of Nerv-Worth and it has done me more good than all the other medicines I have taken. I can cheerfully recommend it to all who suffer from stomach and kidney diseases and rheumatism and nervousness. It is doing wonders for me."

In the light of such testimonials as this and from such a source, how useless it is for man or woman to go along with broken health when the Burke Drug Store stands ready to effect a cure with Nerv-Worth, or hand the buyer's dollar back. Ask demonstrator for a sample dose.—Advertisement.
